

Years of Saving Wild Lives

Striped Skunk with a Culver's Cup

Late January 2012 we got a couple calls that people were driving down hwy 18 and noticed a skunk in the middle of the road with something stuck on it's head. Our staff and a brave volunteer went out to investigate. The skunk had luckily made it's way off the road and was near the bike trail along hwy 18 about two miles east of WINC. The skunk had a Culver's Ice Cream cup with a lid, stuck to it's head. Staff used a long metal pole to apply pressure to the side of the cup to hold it down in place, allowing the skunk to pull back on the cup with it's head. The skunk was free! Staff waiting quietly as the Skunk looked at us, after seeing us as not threat the skunk turned around and starting running in the other direction. Success!